There are too many vacation rentals, my neighborhood used to be a quiet haven, I'm tired of all the random people everywhere, and vandalism on the beach rocks, and people buying up all the houses to exploit the island further. I know vacation rentals are not the only cause of housing shortage, but before vr proliferation it was definitely easier to find a rental. I have friends who have moved over and over or moved off the island when their rental gets turned into a vr. It's also contributing to overtourism, limiting beds limits the number of people who can be here visiting. I rely on tourists for my living, but overtourism destroys the authentic feel and culture of a place. There needs to be balance somehow.
